What's new in Party Poopers:

by Vyxon version 1.2 - updated August 15, 2010 table of contents This guide is intended for players of Southlands. The Southlands are a vast region consisting of a series of interconnected, but distinct, duchies. This guide is a supplement to the regular Fantasy Grounds Southlands Player's Guide. The guide is written so players won't have to search through the Southlands Player's Guide as much as the normal Player's Guide, especially for the Basics. All the powers, creatures, and items described in the guide come from the Southlands Player's Guide, but without the same formatting as the regular Player's Guide. The powers are listed in columns below the Tiny Town map, and at the bottom of the Creature's, Item's, and Occult (in Order of Appearance) Powers pages. After the player has read a page, the new page/column will be shown in gray background with the name bolded. The Power is written in the same order as the corresponding pages in the Southlands Player's Guide, and the reference information is written with the General information at the top, followed by the Common information, and the Rare information. How to use the Southlands Player's Guide 1. With the Spellbook window open, locate the Power you want to use, and read its description. If the spell is not in the player's database, the Spellbook window will tell the player. 2. If the spell is in the player's database, locate the Power in the database, and cast it. Notes: Players can only cast spells from their owner's Spellbook. Spells from the Southlands Player's Guide are not counted against maximum limit per day. Common and Rare information is not specified with the Spellbook. "Common information" and "Rare information" are only more detailed for each Power to help you decide which of its two variants you want to use when playing. Abilities and weapons can be selected to be enchanted when cast. See the FAQ for the list of enchantments. Spells are cast, by default, one per day, and can be saved under the Spells page in the Spellbook window. Use the "Load Spellbook" button in the window to load a spell in the current campaign. Players do not show passive abilities when casting spells. See the FAQ for casting passive
