Get Blacksite: K.O. in the Hip-Hop games industry!. It's the link to Facebook. This has brought us to an indescribable level of Facebook presence. With over two million likes, and over a hundred million FB friends, we would like to thank all of you who have joined us on this journey, and we hope to get to know each of you a little better as time goes on. As far as us as the marketing team go, we always like to comment on our hit DLC. It was almost like the mother of all DLC's, and we were proud to have created this, it was a question of whether or not it would be received well by the community. We have created a tumblr page in the event that you want to explore this content a bit more: We can always tell when a DLC is coming out because the mod clients will bring up a "New DLC" message that you can click on to reveal more details. People will often watch a clip from it, and it helps create hype, which in turn will increase sales. With the release of Moshpit Mayhem, we were amazed to learn that the player base had grown by double digits. We tried to think about new ways to keep the game competitive, but we decided that a new killstreak was needed to keep players interested, and we decided on the "Public Game", which we felt would be the best way to make the audience grow. We started to receive complaints about the "Public Game" not being up on the leaderboards. Many of them were raised by people who had spawned from private matches, and the people who had spawned with them were not able to find the player who had spawned them. As you can see from the screenshots below, there was no way to contact the player. For a long time we did not notice any issues with the "Public Game", but it turned out that 6d1f23a050
